Executive Summary: For the calendar month of November 2019, the Moses Lake Data Center (MLDC) generated gross revenues of $235,889 which represented a 7% increase in revenue from October 2019 of $220,208.

TNT generated $86,416, a 21% increase in revenue from October's $71,302 in revenue.

The total gross revenue generated combined for both sites for October was $322,305, up 11% from October's number of $291,498.

We continued to deploy additional miners across Moses Lake and TNT to increase our mining hash rate and utilize the existing power and available equipment at both sites. While coin prices remained largely stable from October, much of the increase in revenue in November came from a rare drop in difficulty for BTC, which resulted in additional rewards for two weeks. BTC difficulty again began to climb in late November

S9 Machine Mining (primarily Bitcoin): Revenues for MLDC S9s increase primarily due to a drop in difficulty in mid-November. Newer technology continues to ship and we saw the market flooded with used S9 equipment for sale.

Bitcoin Difficulty Chart

The Bitcoin network difficulty chart provides the current BTC difficulty target as well as a historical data graph visualizing Bitcoin mining difficulty chart values with difficulty adjustments (both increases and decreases) defaulted to today with timeline options of 1 day, 1 week, 1 month, 3 months, 6 months, 1 year, 3 years, and all time.

Bitcoin Difficulty is currently at 12.88 T (12,876,842,089,682.00)

L3+ Machine Mining (primarily Litecoin): Revenues from these machines grew from October due primarily to the ongoing drop in LTC mining difficulty which yielded increase number of rewards plus additional equipment being deployed at TNT. We expect difficulty to continue to drop in December for Litecoin which will yield growing revenue but anticipate a slowdown in the difficulty decreases in the new year.

Litecoin Difficulty Chart

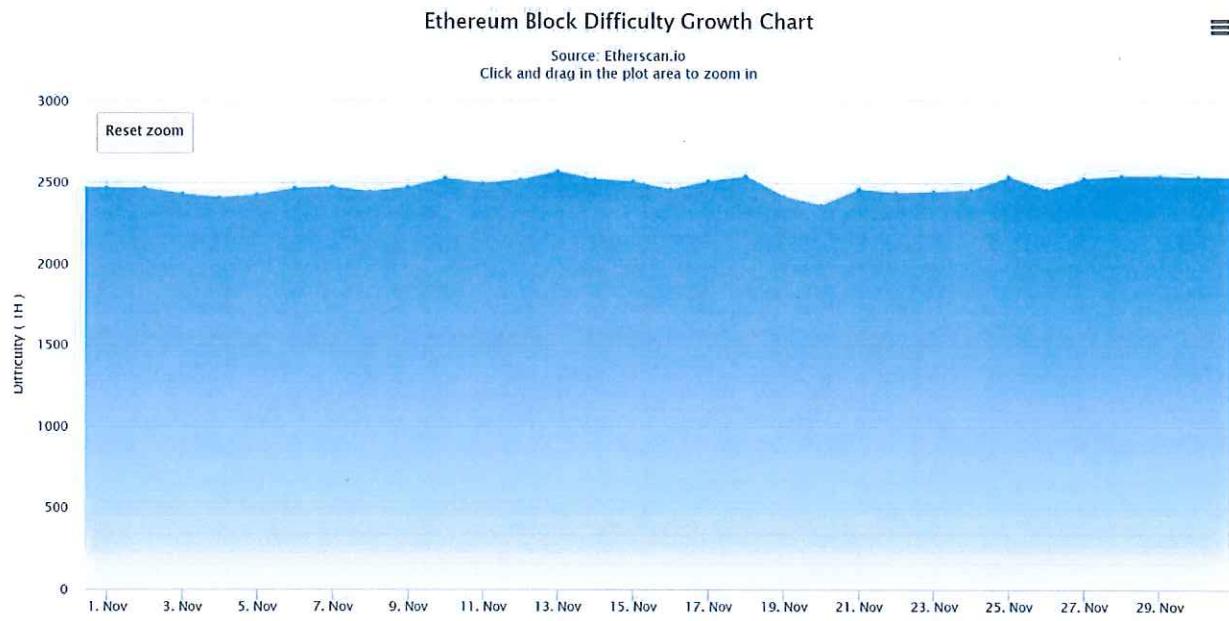

The Litecoin network difficulty chart provides the current LTC difficulty target as well as a historical data graph visualizing Litecoin mining difficulty chart values with difficulty adjustments (both increases and decreases) defaulted to today with timeline options of 1 day, 1 week, 1 month, 3 months, 6 months, 1 year, 3 years, and all time.

Litecoin Difficulty is currently at 5.23 M (5,227,674.00)

GPU Mining (primarily Ethereum):

Revenue for Ethereum mining was largely flat month on month. Difficulty again raised less than 1% month on month and this remains our highest value equipment and generates the most net revenue/kwh compared to L3+s and S9s.

In summary, prices continue to fall for all currencies from July and we have no reliable market indicators that prices for BTC, LTC or ETH will increase significantly before the end of 2019. Assuming the case that market prices are stable, we can assume that mining rewards from the S9 machines (BTC) will continue to decrease due to increasing difficulty and new technology being deployed by competitors. We still have good margins on a per machine basis so it's profitable to continue operating these S9 machines. We expect revenues from the L3+ machines (LTC) will continue to grow due to dropping difficulty and represents our best area where we could have the largest impact on increased revenue. Finally, our GPU mining (ETH), which is currently the most profitable technology to mine on a per kilowatt hour, will remain our best technology equipment going into 2020.
